The Problem We're Solving

Despite all the money and the hard work and dedication of many service providers...

the current approaches boil down to:

- Massive Spending
- Minimal Impact
- Everyone Losing

Community Pain Points

People in Need

- Lost in fragmented services
- No incentives
- Losing hope

Service Providers

- Little collaboration
- No way to track clients
- Traditional funding sources are drying up

Government

- Hundreds of programs
- Low transparency
- High costs

The ENVISION Social Network

Brings Everyone Together

EnVision Surpasses Current Approaches

Thousands of non-profit
service providers

- Unintegrated
- Misalignment between business hours and people's availability
- Hard for users to find the right matches

Regional 211
Unite US
FindHelp
Combined Arms
Others

- Fragmented audiences
- No outreach at scale
- Out-of-date information
- Sites are often abandoned
- Too hard to navigate
- Episodic, 1-time use
- No "stickiness"
- No reliable data

Government
human services
organizations

- Rely on the non-profit network
- When there are counselors and caseworkers, they are overwhelmed and less effective
- Costly

Incentives
for everyone

- Every need...
- Every answer...
- Every lifeline...
- ...in ONE PLACE

No incentives for anyone to get better

Analysis Conclusion

“Many cities, counties, and states have attempted to progress from directory-based referral systems toward integrated cross-sector coordination models (2002–present). EnVision represents the most advanced structural maturity under the definition of true Community Information Exchange: coordinated case management, shared accountability, and measurable community-level impact.”

AI Analysis of Personal Vision Statements Entered in EnVision

The dominant aspiration is stability:

- Safe, permanent housing
- Reliable income or employment
- Financial control (credit repair, saving, paying bills)
- Predictable routines and reduced chaos

Users are seeking stability as a platform for self-respect, pride, and identify—not just crisis relief

EnVision is perceived as a family-level intervention, not just an individual tool

A strong desire for growth, not just assistance

EnVision is seen as a guide, organizer, and mirror

EnVision is not just a resource hub—it's being experienced as a values-based community

EnVision is functioning as a narrative-reset platform, not just a service directory

Users see EnVision as a ladder, not a safety net
